SERBS ROUT THE BULGARS ON CENTRAL BATTLE LINE; GAIN 20 MILES AT MONASTIR

Defenders of the Little Kingdom, Taking the Offensive, Report Victory on Blackbird Plain—Regain Veles-Prilep Line on South Front.

By Carl W. Ackerman.

BERLIN (via Sayville wireless), Nov. 23 (United Press).—Beaten by the Turks, a British force 170,000 strong was thrown back from Bagdad, it was learned to-day, in a battle which, though it occurred several weeks ago, has just been reported here in detail.

The British troops, including Canadian, Australian and Indian contingents, had made a successful march from Egypt and were within less than ten miles of Bagdad, threatening an important railroad terminal on which the German allies were depending for the operation of an offensive later against the British in Egypt by way of Suez.

The Turks, after several severe engagements, drove the British about thirty miles back from Bagdad, insuring the city's safety.

The Bagdad campaign is believed to have been part of a gigantic campaign by the allies, including a Russian march across Persia.

The allies are trying to land enough troops on the Greek coast to menace German railroad communications through Serbia and Bulgaria to Constantinople.

This plan is based, officials say, on an underestimate of the German allies' strength. They estimate that 41,000,000 Germans are now in uniform, or that about one citizen in every seven is a soldier.

Serbs Claim Defeat of Bulgars On Central and Southern Lines

PARIS, Nov. 23.—A defeat of Bulgarians by the Serbians in a battle in central Serbia is announced in an official communication given out at the Serbian legation here to-day. Five Bulgarian cannons were captured.

The communication, which gives partial confirmation of recent reports that the Serbians had assumed the offensive and defeated the Bulgarians, follows:

"Battles occurred recently on the old Serb-Turkish frontier. The most important encounters were fought to the west of Velika Plana and Munt Zetovatz. We inflicted a defeat on the enemy at the latter point, capturing five mountain cannons."

[Velika Plana is twenty-five miles west of Nish, and thirty-five miles northwest of Leskovatz, in the region of which an important Serbian victory has been reported unofficially. A dispatch from Rome mentions Kosovo Polje—the plain of the Blackbirds—as the scene of victory.]

[German reports have been indicating for several days that the entire Serbian northern army was on the verge of capture, extermination or expulsion across the Montenegrin frontier.

[Monday's account of a Bulgar defeat at Leskovatz and to-day's report of the repulse of Bulgarian forces north of Vranja are believed to indicate the Serbs have made one or more drives to the seaward, probably from positions south of Pristina.]

ATHENS, Nov. 23.—Repulsing the Bulgars, who were driving them to the southward, the Serbs have regained their Veles-Prilep front, a Serbian official statement announced to-day.

They are rushing reinforcements now to the small bands which, even after the Bulgars had taken Babuna Pass, have continued to defend cer-

BULLETS IN CHASE OF HOLD-UP MEN ON FIFTH AVENUE

Masked Robbers Dash Through Street as Policeman Opens Fire on Them.

BIG CROWD IN PURSUIT.

Fugitives Run Across Broadway and Are Captured in Gramercy Park.

Two men, one masked with a handkerchief, and both armed with revolvers, entered the offices of the Guaranteed Damaged Weaving Company, on the third floor of No. 125 Fifth Avenue, shortly before noon to-day, and attempted to hold up and rob Miss Pauline Klein, an employee of the concern. While hundreds of persons passed in the noon-hour throng outside, they struggled with the girl until her cries brought help. When they dashed through the crowd outside and a manhunt on Fifth Avenue followed.

The girl was alone in the front part of the offices when the men entered. One of the men seized her by the throat, while the other pointed his revolver at her with a threat of death if she called out. The girl wrenched herself free enough to give one frantic scream. It brought to her aid Harry Bonard, of No. 355 Jennings Street, the Bronx, who was on the same floor. As Bonard dashed into the room the men released the girl and turned to face him. Bonard found himself looking down the muzzle of a revolver. He stopped and the men ran down the stairs and dashed out among the Fifth Avenue throng.

In an instant Bonard was after the two men. One of the robbers turned to menace him with his revolver.

The men ran north to Twenty-first street and turned east. As the chase led across Broadway an express man leaped from his wagon and knocked one of the robbers down. But he and others feared to close with the armed bandit and before he could be seized the fugitive leaped to his feet and ran on.

At Fourth Avenue, Bonard caught sight of Policeman Maimoli and shouted a warning to the officer. As the two men darted past the policeman, he seized one. The other fled, ignoring Maimoli's order to stop.

Maimoli drew his revolver and fired. The sound of the shot and Bonard's excited cries had by this time brought hundreds to swell the pursuit.

The second fugitive darted around the corner into Gramercy Park. For an instant he was out of sight of his pursuers. Quickly he sprang up the steps and into the vestibule of the house at No. 2 Gramercy Park West occupied by C. W. Sherwood. Hearing the bell, and as a servant opened the door he pushed his way into the house and darted into the parlor. Traffic Policeman Kreutzer turned the corner just in time to see the man vanish. He searched the house, and hiding behind the piano he found a man, armed with a revolver, whom he arrested.

The first prisoner said he was Ernest Bauer, eighteen years old, of No. 508 Plant Road, West Hoboken, N. J. The other man arrested said he was Frederick Gumbler, seventeen, of No. 124 Third Street, Union Hill, N. J.

Miss Klein, who lives at No. 241 Livingston Street, in her account to the police, said it was Bauer who seized her by the throat and Gumbler who threatened her with a revolver. Bonard said Bauer had pointed a weapon at him.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF POLICEMAN, WIFE AND CANARY BIRD

Found Lifeless in Home—Clam and Oyster Shells Suggest Plomaine Poisoning.

NO POISON IS POUND.

Fellow Bluecoats Climb Ladder to Window and Discover the Tragedy.

Fifteen detectives are at work to-day in an effort to clear up the mystery of the death of Policeman Anthony F. Bois and his wife, Anna, in their apartment at No. 74 Ralph Avenue, Brooklyn. Bois was attached to the Delancey Street Station, Manhattan. He did not appear for duty at 8 o'clock to-day and at 10 o'clock a message was sent to the Ralph Avenue Station, Brooklyn, two blocks from his home, asking that a man be sent to the house to find out what was the matter with him.

Policeman Anderson went to the apartment. There was no response to his knocking and calls. He returned to the station for help. Policemen Henken then went to the house with him. They raised a ladder, supported by William Lang, the janitor, to the window of the Bois apartment on the third floor. In the kitchen Bois, dead, was seated in a chair, with his head lying forward on his chest. He had removed his upper clothing and sat on a pajama coat.

The policemen entered the window. They found Mrs. Bois dead in her bed. Her face was distorted, as if she had died in severe pain.

A burner of the gas stove was burning, and the hot water attachment was in action. Scalding hot water was running into the tub in the bathroom. There were no open lights unlighted, and the was not a trace of free gas in the room.

A canary bird in a cage near the dining room window was dead, but the window was partly open a few inches away, and the bird is believed to have frozen to death.

A great quantity of clam and oyster shells were piled on a platter on the dining room table, where the two had apparently eaten together. The ambulance surgeon who was called said his only explanation of the deaths was a guess that the shellfish might have been tainted, causing plomaine poisoning. The glasses on the table were taken for an analysis of their contents. A search of the apartment disclosed no note or other evidence that either of the pair had contemplated suicide.

Bois, who was fifty-four years old, had been a policeman for twenty-five years, serving nearly all that time in Delancey Street.

BOAT MAY PROVE CLUE TO MISSING SOCIETY MAN

BAITMORE, Nov. 23.—The boat in which Dwight L. Mallory, missing society man set out to hunt ducks on the Chesapeake flats was found shortly after noon to-day by M. Gilbert and Edward L. Bartlett, members of the searching party, who played out to hunt for Mallory. They came upon the boat off Pointe Island. It was empty. Two life preservers were found, but no trace of the missing man.

Mallory was in Jersey Woods, HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 22, Mrs. John Kozan of No. 127 Washington Street, New York, who was brought to the divorcee woman a week ago by her husband and shot in the neck, died in the Hackensack Hospital to-day. The murderer has not been found.

ARREST PARENTS OF GIRL HELD 11 YEARS A PRISONER

Marshall Accused of Murder of Infant and Wife of Assault and Detention.

CASE PROVES PUZZLING.

Prosecutor Has Hard Task Finding Law to Cover It—Girl Is Improving.

EASTON, Md., Nov. 23.—Frank Marshall and his wife, who were alleged to have held Marshall's daughter, Grace, a prisoner at their home for eleven years, were arrested to-day. Marshall was arrested on a warrant charging him with assault with intent to murder. Mrs. Marshall was charged with assault and illegal detention of the young woman, who is her step-daughter.

State's Attorney Butler decided on these charges after examining many statutes. There is no statute directly applicable to the remarkable case, he found.

The alleged victim, Grace Marshall, who had lost her speech, is slowly recovering and is learning to talk again word by word.

Both Marshall and his wife, step-mother of the girl, expressed skepticism when told the girl had spoken. Marshall declared he had taken the girl to Johns Hopkins Hospital, thirteen years ago and had been told she was demented and nothing could be done for her.

SHOTS ON BROADWAY END EXCITING CHASE

Man Who Wanted an Overcoat Tries to Leave Policeman on Way to Headquarters.

A young man strolled into Rogers, Post & Co.'s store at Broadway and Thirtieth Street this afternoon and tried an overcoat until he found one he liked. Then he strolled out, quite at ease.

Charles P. Goetz, a clerk, ran to Traffic Policeman Kennedy, who stopped the dapper young man. They boarded a southbound Broadway car of the subway (type 100) and the car stopped at 10th Street. The car stopped at 10th Street. The car stopped at 10th Street.

At Police Headquarters the prisoner, who is Alfred Nicholas, thirty-four years old, his occupation, of No. 416 West Sixty-fifth Street, he was sent to Jefferson Market Court.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Tod Sloan, once famous jockey, was to-day deported from England on the charge of operating a gambling house. Sloan left London at once for Liverpool, planning to board a liner for New York. A French woman, who is alleged to have been his partner, was deported to France.

BELGIAN WAR ORPHAN MAY NOT LAND HERE

Baroness Sent for Child But Immigration Board Requires Formal Adoption.

Jeanne Procter, a boy thirteen-month-old Belgian orphan and a passenger on the steamship St. Paul of the American Line, arriving yesterday, was ordered deported by a Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island to-day. The baby was brought across the Atlantic by Mrs. Mary Stanford of the request of the Baroness Nadine von Kliffen Procter, the divorced wife of Percy Procter, a millionaire soap manufacturer.

The Baroness came to this country several months ago to recuperate from her labors as a nurse in France and lives at the Hotel Cumberland. She recently made arrangements for adopting a Belgian war orphan, and in this capacity has been at the front continuously since the beginning of the war.

The Board of Special Inquiry took the ground that there was no evidence presented of the formality of the adoption proceedings and therefore there was danger that the baby might become a public charge. Simon O. Pollock, the lawyer for the Baroness, gave notice that he would appeal the case to Washington.

PUT ENEMY ON KNEES, IS PLEA OF KAISER

German Emperor Urges Troops To Drive Them Back "With Bloody Heads."

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 23.—"Let us send our enemies back with bloody heads until they are on their knees, which promise to be soon," the Kaiser is quoted in Berlin dispatches today as urging the troops in an address at the inspection of the forces under Gen. Woytowicz.

The scene of the inspection is not explained, but Woytowicz, according to latest news, is serving with Marshal von Mackensen in the Serbian campaign.

GOVERNMENT HITS STRAIGHT AT GERMAN NAVAL ATTACHE AS 'HIGHER UP' CONSPIRATOR

U. S. Attorney Charges One Agent Who Got $750,000 From Mysterious Source Received His Orders From Boy-Ed.

ATTACHE'S COUNSEL FREELY ADMITS MOST OF CHARGES

The defendants in the trial of the Government against the Hamburg-American Line, Karl Buentz and other officials and employees, showed an anxiety to-day to keep under cover the names of the men in high places charged with being at the head of the alleged conspiracy to supply German warships at sea.

After Assistant United States Attorney Roger B. Wood's address to the jury, claiming that Capt. Boy-Ed, the German Naval Attache at Washington, handled the money to pay for the ships and supplies, William Rand Jr., counsel for the defense, admitted all Mr. Wood said, and expressed a willingness to let the case against his clients rest.

HANS SCHMIDT MUST DIE FOR MURDER OF GIRL

Court of Appeals, in Unanimous Decision, Upholds Conviction of Former Priest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The judgment convicting Hans Schmidt, the former New York priest, of the murder of Anna Ammiller, was upheld by the Court of Appeals to-day. Judge Cardozo wrote the opinion, in which all the other Judges concurred.

Schmidt, who was performing the offices of a priest at St. Joseph's Church, West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, New York, was arrested on Sept. 15, 1912, and confessed to the police that he had killed Miss Ammiller, whose dismembered body had been found in the North River two weeks earlier.

The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury, but a second trial ended in a conviction, Feb. 6, 1914. Later Schmidt repudiated his confession and the case was carried to the Court of Appeals on the ground that the confession was false and that Miss Ammiller's death was the result of an illegal operation.

Judge Cardozo's opinion holds that no court has power to grant a new trial upon that ground. "For," the opinion states, "the statute gives power to grant a new trial only where it appears that the evidence, if produced, might have changed the verdict if it has been discovered since the trial and if it is not cumulative and the failure to produce it was not owing to want of diligence."

The opinion also states that Schmidt was not convicted upon his plea of guilty.
